Morgan on 2022:

2022 was a good volume and I'm also happy with the quality. The malos took their time though – that said, our cellar was cool so maybe that played a role. We had three new cuvées in this vintage – vines from Pauline in St.Romain and Auxey-Duresses.

Morgan on 2021:

“2022 was much more generous but we were relatively okay, there wasn't actually that much frost in our village, which coupled with our later pruning meant that we were not so badly touched. Harvesting was between 26 September to 01 October – but it wasn't easy to get the full maturity in this vintage. We stayed with the infusion style of vinification but obviously, this took quite a lot longer than in 2020 – which, here, brought a similar volume, it wasn't much more in 2019 either. Almost all was destemmed – just a couple of cuvées with about 20% were included.”

The wines...

Some of the wines had quite strained, almost cooked fruit aromas – but all were delicious and very drinkable. Good wines in 2021!

Treccasses version of DIAM used here:

2021 Côteaux Bourguignone

About half gamay – this on cordon in a deep and clay-y soil.

Lots of colour. Fresh, darker fruit, almost a little caramel ripeness. Even nicer flavour than the nose – mouth-filling, structured but mainly hidden structure. Finishing well. That's a fine mouthful of wine – yum!

2021 Bourgogne Fleur du Pinot

This is their no-sulfur cuvée – with barrel élevage.

A dark, almost meaty fruit nose. Broad, full of energy, a juicy wine – and with super texture too – quite a spicy and concentrated wine but balanced by its juiciness.

Again very tasty.

2021 Bourgogne Les Clusere

0.27 ha – The vines neighbouring the Clos des Grandes Vignes Nuits 1er of Comte Liger-Belair. Higher training here – and they are adapting the whole of the domaine to this

The nose of darker fruit like the others – a but grilled and slightly rustic – yet also still inviting. In the mouth this is lovely – there's depth, energy and a width to these flavours – the oak is present but not destabilising. Hmm – I like that a lot – it's simply excellent.

2021 Bourgogne Les Chaillots Vieilles-Vignes

Largest cuvée of the domaine – from the 'wrong side' of the RN but the right side of the train tracks in Premeaux – the cone de dejection of Vallerots...

Slightly redder and more direct aromas – my favourite so far. Mouth-filling but with good fluidity – there's concentration but it's never heavy. The oak slightly less visible. Give me the nose of this and the flavours of the last for a properly great Bourgogne. That's a very nice finish though – delicious wine!

2021 Bourgogne Hautes Côtes de Nuits La Montagne

Dark but clean fruit – that’s very attractive – becoming quite floral too. ‘It was quite reductive at the start – but this parcel is like that every year’

A width of energy here – a slightly chalky texture to the tannin. Juicy, lovely middle and finishing flavour – this is super!

2021 Côte de Nuits Villages

3 different, small, parcels – all in Comblanchien: Dominode, Au Cas, Les Loges.

A little reduction that sticks for a while. Good shape and energy in the mouth – the creaminess of the barrel is marked, licorice too – though maybe that’s the reduction – but it’s still a delicious combination. Carafe today – and enjoy...

2021 Côte de Nuits Villages La Bonnemaines

Also in Comblanchien

A broad nose that’s also dark and vibrant but not my favourite style. This is super in the mouth though, volume, a wine that flexes its muscles too – delicious and only modestly redolent of the nose – I’d carafe this again to finesse the nose a little...

2021 Nuits St.Georges Vieille-Vignes

Charbonniers plus Taupons – together 0.45 ha – one part of Charbonniers almost 100 years old, the Taupons about 70... It was here where they first tried the higher training

Again a darker slightly forced nose – but more attractive than the previous. That’s lovely in the mouth again – sinuous, texturally of velvet and tasty – carafe again but this is lovely!

A range of 4 contract wines:

2021 Chambolle-Musigny

Two parcels; Drazées and a little from Herbues

More red fruit, less power but good and open aromas. This is another lovely wine in the mouth – mobile, accented with a tasty barrel cream. Broad and lingering in the finish – very tasty

2021 Morey St.Denis

2 parcels – Clos Solon and Bas de Chenevery – roughly equal.

Hmm – more direct and airy – this is the loveliest nose so far – red fruit and becoming perfumed too. Vibrant, mouth-watering energy. Juicy complex – I can imagine somebody buying wine only since 2015 might struggle to understand it – but this is a top villages – so delicious!

2021 Gevrey-Chambertin Les Seuvrées

‘Deeper clays here on the other side of the RN’

Back a little to the slightly grilled aromas – redder than the domaine wines still. Large-scale and lots of freshness. There’s a juicy, red-fruited, quality to these flavours, almost red-currant – finishing and slightly chalky tannin in the finish.

2021 Pommard 1er Les Bertins

This one is organic – 3 barrels worth from a large 2ha parcel.

Hmm – a redder style of fruit and with a textural depth – this is very attractive indeed. Great shape and mobility of flavour in the mouth. A little tannin in the finish but practically without a grain. Slight caramel in these finishing flavours – that’s a delicious and attractively complex wine.

Les Whites:

2021 Bourgogne Aligote

2 parcels – one in Premeaux below Vignottes and another next to the cemetery of Premeaux

A broad and vibrant, slightly metallic impression to this aroma. In the mouth, it’s cushioned and has plenty of sweetness. Becoming almost exotic in the middle and finishing flavours – ‘peach skin too’ – yes I see that.

2021 Bourgogne Aligoté Baies

This with 7 months of skin contact – done also in 2020 – in a stainless steel barrel.

Darker colour – airy aromatics – attractive herbs too. Broad, nicely incisive – still a suggestion of the exotic – more tannin – a chalkiness too – hmm – I may like this a little more – there’s certainly a more generous depth to this flavour.

2021 Bourgogne Pinot Blanc

The upper part of the previous parcel is planted in pinot blanc...

Barrel elevage. The nose is quite herby to start but with an engaging width. Hmm – a slightly metallic style but juicy and complex – ripe and fresh at the same time – I like this – very good.

2021 Bourgogne Hautes Côtes de Nuits Chardonnay La Montagne

This took almost a year to finish its sugars – it has a darker colour though – like the skin-contact aligoté.

That’s a lovely invitation – a darker vibrancy of aroma – suggesting a little reduction. Yes – lovely – a vibrant wine in the flavour too – not quite butterscotch but going in that direction. Delicious!

More reports with Domaine Truchetet

Since I last visited, there's been significant work to increase the height of the training and having in a green covering in the vines. They are not working the middle of the rows – there's a lot of thought going on here on how to make a difference – but they are also sure that they see a difference in the texture of the pulp of the grapes. Then there's the treatments; more and more, other than copper and sulfur, they are based on plants. “My grandparents had done their work with massale selections so we are doing the same and it means that we do already have some great vines. Even doing some marquettage – otherwise known as provignage or layering – they will see how long it survives...”

Morgan on 2021:

“We were relatively okay, there wasn't actually that much frost in our village, that coupled with our later pruning meant that we were not so badly touched. Harvesting was between 26 September to 01 October – but it wasn't easy to get the full maturity in this vintage. We stayed with the infusion style of vinification but obviously, this took quite a lot longer than in 2020 – we finished barreling only last week! Minus 40% volume.”

Morgan on 2020:

“Like in 2021 it was about 40% down but really due to the dryness. The wines have been assembled for about 10 days and will now stay in their tanks for the second winter.”

Brother and sister Morgan & Julie Truchetet are responsible for the Domaine Truchetet wines. Morgan Truchetet is the label for the contract wines. The labels have been slightly updated too. Additionally, Pauline – Morgan's wife, will inherit her family domaine and to start, they will buy the grapes and commercialise with a négoce label. There's more coming in 2023 too – Auxey-Duresses, St.Romain and some Bourgogne Hautes Côtes de Beaune.

The wines...

Lots of ideas at this domaine but more importantly many, many really excellent wines – a few great ones too!

Treccasses version of DIAM used here:

2020 Côteaux Bourguignone

About half gamay – this on cordon in a deep and clay-y soil – this had the longest malo of all the wines.

A blend of depth and fresh top notes – that's nicely pure. Direct and beautifully, vibrantly, energetic. Really an impressively finishing intensity and long-lasting. Yum!

2020 Bourgogne Les Clusere

Near Nuits with clay soil again but more stones here.

Fresh, a little mineral, the fruit more guarded here to start. Wide, again vibrant – a different depth and texture. More width and ease to this finishing flavour.

2020 Bourgogne Les Chaillots Vieilles-Vignes

Largest cuvée of the domaine – again with a lot of clay in the deep soil, red from the iron.

Of course, there's lots of colour here. Deeper and fuller fruit in the depth. Ooh – yes – again vibrant but with an extra juicy side. The Nuits tannins are modestly more visible but without grain. A wine of power but that's also completely delicious.

2020 Bourgogne Fleur de Pinot

Bottled in September just before the harvest. A mix of Argillères and Chaillots for a no added sulfur cuvée – also none at bottling.

Deeply coloured. Hmm – that's really not bad – round but clean, dark-fruited. The mouth-filling flavour is more supple and open, quite fruity and lacking no concentration. Only in the finishing flavour do you have the impression of a slightly different flavour profile.

2020 Bourgogne Pinot Noir Vieilles-Vignes

This just bottled a couple of weeks.

A little deeper colour. This a more savoury nose, faintly with licorice. Also in the mouth, a savoury style, but growing in volume and a little sweetness. Very much a flavour of licorice – wide and well textured with fine but ripe tannin. Good length but not really my personal flavour profile...

The next wines are not yet bottled – planning February:

2020 Bourgogne Hautes Côtes de Nuits La Montagne

Same terroir as the white, above Premeaux at 330 metres – 'it's all limestone here.'

A more airy and floral nose – that's lovely. Also directly juicy, mobile, just so moreish – that's a great wine!

2020 Côte de Nuits Villages

In Comblanchien. From three parcels, trying some 500-litre barrels for this cuvée

Here the nose starts more compact and there's a small impression of wc – but there are none. Extra width, similarly juicy – a little more concentrated. The tannin is more visible but with no grain. That's a very impressive wine.

2020 Côte de Nuits Villages Bonne Menes

More open and fresh, here with some floral accents. A little barrel flavour in the middle but this is a more sophisticated texture, the tannin has a micro-grain but no drying aspects. Very delicious and slowly mouth-watering in the finish. Holding well too. I liked a lot the last wine but this is more sophisticated and simply excellent.

2020 Nuits St.Georges Vieille-Vignes

Charbonniers plus Taupons – together 0.45 ha – one part of Charbonniers almost 100 years old, the Taupons about 70... It was here where they first tried the higher training

A subtle reduction but this is an engrossing nose of darker fruited invitation. Wide, layered, good freshness yet still a contemplative side. A wine with concentration but another that delivers its goods with sophistication – and this is Nuits! Another excellent wine.

A range of contract wines from 3 different suppliers:

2020 Nuits St.Georges Taupons

Below Clos des Forets, the end of the band on the 'wrong' side of the road that begins with the 1er Clos des Grand Vignes. About 30% wc in this wine

The wc perfume is directly evident – but it's well done and inviting. Bright, mouth-filling – full of energy. The texture is fine again. That's a very long finish – 1er cru level – if you like stems you will love this one – I do!

2020 Gevrey-Chambertin Les Seuvrées

There's both depth and freshness but here's a nose that's not fully open to start. Lovely impact of mouth-watering flavour. This is an easy but very tasty wine. Very good.

2020 Morey St.Denis

2 parcels – Clos Solon and Bas Chenevery – roughly equal.

More open, and complex nose of freshness with faint spice above supported by plenty of fruit. That sits very well on the palate – mouth-filling but open, melting, slowly mouthwatering. That's a super wine – really...

2020 Chambolle-Musigny

Les Drazées plus a few rows of Les Herbues

Just the faintest impression of less colour – but marginally. This is fine but just a little compact vs the Morey – quite different in style with its sweetness of dark fruit. More direct, less mouth-filling but wide and with a lovely texture. More mouth-watering – a purer style of darker fruit – different and also delicious. There's more definition to this wine. Different and a slight preference for me though the nose needs to expand.

2020 Nuits St.Georges 1er Vallerots

Just below the terraces

That's a lovely freshness of wild strawberry fruit. Pure, cool fruit, fine texture, slowly melting. This is excellent wine and far too easy to drink! Lovely...

Les Whites:

2020 Bourgogne Aligote

Clay soil at the bottom of Premeaux. Two parcels assembled – just under 0.5 ha. This already bottled same time as the Fleur de Pinot

The nose starts full and energetic but with some rigour, slowly easing with air. In the mouth – open, airy, quite mouth filling – almost a quince style to this fruit. Very good finishing – that's nice – a good wine...

2020 Bourgogne Aligoté Baes

With 7 months of skin contact. This tasted from barrel

This is a more open nose with some floral and herbal hints. Hmm – wide, really interesting, faintly tannic but with a slightly acidulated finishing flavour – wide and tasty. That's very lovely – an excellent aligoté.

2020 Pinot Blanc

Bottled. Fermented in barrel, partly acacia-wood.

Hmm – that's a large-scaled nose – almost a smoky, spicy, complexity. Much more direct and mineral than the nose suggests but still with some richness and melting sweetness of fruit. Wider in the finish, slowly fading, slightly contemplative. Absolutely delicious.

2020 Bourgogne Hautes Côtes de Nuits Chardonnay La Montagne

On the plateau above Premeaux after the forest, very little soil, mainly on limestone, bottled at the end of August. Barrels that have a mix of oak and acacia – the new ones. This will be bottled in Dec – 12 months in barrel then (now) in tank

A nose with some direction and yellow, ripe, citrus. Airy, melting, ooh – that's really lovely over the palate – absolutely delicious – still some accents of the barrel but that's a great Bourgogne

2020 Pernand-Vergelesses Les Plantes des Champs et Combottes

Bought as must

A deeper nose, ripe again but with freshness and depth. Wide, quite a mineral and mouth-watering style – some depth of flavour, slowly finishing. This needs more elevage it's not showing the impressive style of the last at this stage but the parts seem good.

2020 Bourgogne Chardonnay

From the Côtes de Couchois

A very different style, slightly apple/oxidative to start. The shape has extra richness but there's a nice mouth-watering balance to this, slowly lingering. Less my personal favourite style but quite long and tasty.

2018 Bourgogne Hautes Côtes – reds

3.6.2020 | BILL N

The wines...

With rare exceptions, these wines were generous and completely drinkable – but they were also balanced and fresh – there is no rush to drink them. I would say many great 'Bourgognes' were produced in the Hautes Côtes in 2018 – probably more-so than in the Côte d'Or. It turned out that my favourite three (pictured below) were all from the Hautes Côtes de Nuits – and they were three wines of very different styles too!

2018 Truchetet, Bourgogne Hautes Côtes de Nuits 'La Montagne'

Domaine-branded cork.

Medium-plus colour. Ooh – this is different; a faint funkiness, probably some whole-cluster fermentation here, becoming more and more (rose) floral with aeration – I like! Red-fruited, some energy that's exacerbated by a little prickle of CO₂ – slowly you get to see a nice texture – more velvet than silk, but the tiny grain to the tannin is completely ripe. Wide, complex, finishing. I love the whole-cluster complexity that this wine delivers – but it will certainly repay a couple of years patience in the cellar. Bravo!
